Talks include refreshments and are at the Grosvenor Museum, 27 Grosvenor Street, CH1 2DD

James Dixon: The Archaeology of Chester Contemporary

Saturday 11 November, 2pm / £2

We loved investigating the archaeology of public art with James Dixon in a walk in September. Now he's doing a talk!

Chester Contemporary is not only taking place in Chester and inspired by Chester, it's an active part of the city's past, present and future. This talk by archaeologist of public art, Dr James Dixon, will examine what Chester Contemporary's works mean to the city and its story, using the perspective of a landscape archaeology created over millions of years.

British Sign Language (BSL) interpretation will be provided for this event.

Adrian Sumner: Hidden Gems of Chester Architecture

Thursday 16 November, 3pm / £2

Using the Grosvenor Museum's Topographical collection as inspiration, and spotlighting the series of works commissioned from Contemporary Chester artists featured in Peter Boughton's celebrated book

'Picturesque Chester', this lecture explores the wide diversity of styles which have been used to describe and define both the modern life and the historical significance of 'Deva Cestris'.

Access: There is lift into the Museum and level access into the back of the lecture theatre. There is a hearing loop in the theatre and an accessible toilet in the museum.
